

Final Examination Schedule, Semester I, 2009–2010

The week of December 7 is designated as “finals week” for all undergraduate students; therefore, the week is to be devoted to final exams. No regular class sessions are scheduled that week for any undergraduate classes—either day or Extended Programs traditional classes.

A two-hour final examination period is required for all day classes and scheduled according to the timetable below. The final exam time for Extended Programs classes is the regularly scheduled meeting time during finals week. The final examination time for evening classes meeting more than one day a week is the first class meeting of the week.

Final examinations for most classes will be scheduled according to the chart below. Some classes, including Nursing classes and classes that do not start at one of the listed times below, will be scheduled on an individual basis. Information about any variations in this final examination schedule will be available by November 2009, in the Registrar’s Office.

No exams are scheduled Friday, December 11. This day can be used to schedule makeup exams as needed.

Students with conflicts must consult with the instructors and make arrangements to take one of the final exams at another time.
